

The New York Times

ART IN REVIEW

DHANUSHKA, 2007 Copper, Glass Beads, Brass Beads, Wood, Air 39" x 70" x 38"

VALSAN KOORMA KOLLERI

*Talwar Gallery
108 East 16th Street, Flatiron District
(212) 673-3096
Through June 16*

This Indian artist turns found objects, castoff materials and local stone from Kerala, where he lives, into large but delicate abstract sculptures. Copper vessels become containers for air and space; metal clock springs are woven into a time-rusted open-work basket; the simplest forms are ornamented with embedded glass beads.

HOLLAND COTTER